

From: Dayna Nichols
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/3/02 8:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am in favor of the Department of Justice stopping any actions it is pursuing against Microsoft. The stock has plummeted and numerous investors like myself have lost a lot. I feel if the government had not pursued Microsoft, the stock market, technology stocks, would not be in the condition it is in. We can thank Bill Clinton.

If Microsoft has done something so terribly wrong, then why is it every government agency and business uses Microsoft products to run their computer systems? I am a Federal employee and everything we use at our agency is a Microsoft product. All laptops, desktops and shared workstations are run by Microsoft. I'll bet if some took a look around the Department of Justice your computer systems are all Microsoft based. How about email? How about work processing programs? How about calendar systems? How about spread sheet programs? Should I continue?

What about companies like Intel? What about their processors? What other companies use their processors in as many computers?

Drop what you are doing, let them get back to business. Microsoft is producing the best computer software in the world. Let them continue.